The Virtual Information Centre for Finnish Architecture

Launched in September 2009, finnisharchitecture.fi is a virtual information centre aimed at anyone interested in Finnish architecture. It also promotes Finnish architecture as part of Finland's cultural export. Available in English, it caters to international audiences, including public bodies as well as interested individuals.

The portal brings together the various agents operating in Finnish architecture, guiding visitors to their respective websites. Topical news feature events of international interest such as current overseas projects by Finnish architects. Visitors can search through practicing architects and offices, as well as architects of interest. You can also find out about education, research and building protection issues and Finnish architectural policies. In addition, the website serves as an information channel for individual events.

The virtual information centre is maintained by the Museum of Finnish Architecture and the Alvar Aalto Museum, both independent architectural organisations and it was launched in collaboration with the Finnish Association of Architects, SAFA; The Association of Finnish Architects' Offices (ATL); and the Building Information Foundation RTS.

We hope to bring everyone engaged in the industry together!
